T radition ouches omorrow OPENING

As August drew to an end, students, whether freshmen or upperclassmen, prepared to return to the Hill-top. Freshmen arrived uncertain of what to expect and were joined by upperclassmen who were able to help them adjust to their new surroundings. In addition to the start of classes, many found themselves involved in a wide variety of activities including social, religious, service, and academic natures. Students forged forward into what seemed an endless cycle of constant activity and little sleep. Many of the age-old traditions of the college continued; however, changes surrounded the tradition. Students faced changes in the time schedule of classes to allow for a new Common Hour that provided opportunities for the campus community to join together. Additionally, construction was under way on the new science facility as well as on the new Fraternity Row. All of the changes expanded on the traditions of the college with the goal of improving students' lives and preparing students for the future. Thus, throughout the year tradition touched tomorrow.

New students receive assistance from members of campus organizations as they prepare for Orientation and college life.

"Being thousands of miles away from my country, Birmingham-Southern has become home. Here, I have developed spiritually, intellectually, and personally. I have built friendships that will last a lifetime."

--Julia Kedrova

"Perhaps the most enjoyable aspect of my position is the opportunity to interact with students. Few other institutions encourage the one-on-one interaction between students, faculty, and staff."

"Although there are other schools comparable to 'Southern in size and academic reputation,

I doubt that I would have received the same personal attention from the professors or made the same friends anywhere else. The last four years have not been perfect, but they have been memorable, and in the long run, that's what counts."

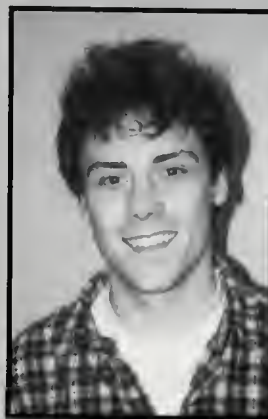

--Elizabeth Carrigan

Making memories

STUDENT LIFE

Many students wish that they had known that no matter how late they scheduled their first class, they would sleep right through it anyway, or if they wore polyester, everyone would ask them why they were so dressed up. Who ever knew that a science lab would require more time than all one's other classes put together, or that one could know absolutely everything and still fail a test. Many entered college with high expectations and preconceived notions; however, as each student found his niche on campus, his notions of college life were changed. In addition to classes, students found themselves involved in a variety of social activities, work, and clubs. As a student accepted numerous responsibilities, he faced juggling his time to make room for each activity and also leave a little time for relaxation and fun. Although enduring hectic schedules, students found themselves making memories at each turn of the road.

"The wonderful thing about life on the Hilltop is the wide variety of friends that you can interact with...and I love the convenience of the Southside shuttle."

--Andrew Jackson

"I'd take a class of 20 anyday over 200. The professors know you by name and they usually insist you call them by their first name. I'm working on getting Dr. Berte to come hang out with us in the Cellar. Come on, Neal!"

--Natalie Hummel

"Me learn English good at Southern."

--James Griffin

WELCOME TO THE HILLTOP

Excitement overflows as new students arrive on campus.

Orientation week was the ideal time for new students to make a first impression. Enthusiasm, nervousness, excitement, confusion, and for some, even a few tears were experienced as these new faces found their new home. Students Offering Support, Triangle Club, Peer Advisors, Resident Advisors, Rho Chis and many other students assisted the freshmen as they carried heavy boxes, refrigerators, rugs, stereos, televisions and much more into the dorms.

In the Colliseum, members of SOS welcome the Hilltop with car decals, room keys, informational forms, and an Orientation packet.

Basketball Coach Duane Reboul and Sophomore Matt Burke welcome new team player Shema Mbyirukira to Birmingham-Southern College.

Some freshmen plan to live it up in the dorms by bringing their own furniture. New Men's Resident Advisor David Driskill and Cullen Daniel Resident Advisor Hill Carmichael prepared to carry the couch up the stairway.

Stewart Jackson and Shannon Mancin bring a cheerful smile along with cool refreshing water to the students throughout the morning.

President Neal Berte personally welcomes North resident Chryseis Griffin and her family to the Hilltop.

At 3:45 the parents said "good-bye", and then three jam-packed days of preparation, wacky activities, and late nights on the quad began.

FALL ORIENTATION 2000

After the freshmen finished moving in, parents were "scheduled" fifteen minutes to shed some tears, share those last minute "do's" and "don't's", and squeeze in a few hugs and kisses before leaving. Following the parents departure from the Hilltop, the freshmen underwent an intense three-day Orientation that entailed several class preparation activities as well as a few icebreakers such as Goofy games and the infamous Square Dance. Each of the activities helped freshmen make friends and become acquainted with their new surroundings.

Triangle Club member Mark Beaty and Rho Chi Valerie Lemmons grab a few appliances to carry up to the quad.

Security takes a quick break while directing traffic on one of the busiest days of the year.

The assistance of Triangle Club members makes moving in a breeze for incoming freshmen.

Life on the Hilltop

Life on the Hilltop consists of both studying and socializing.

Many entered Birmingham-Southern College with high expectations and preconceived notions. Through trial and error most learned that these notions were perhaps unrealistic. The classes expected to be a breeze turned out to be endless hours of stressful studying and work. The idea of maintaining a 4.0 average was traded for numerous nights of staying out until 4:00 o'clock in the morning at a party instead. The alarm clock that was expected to wake one up for that painful 8:00 class never seemed to go off, or it could just be that he slept right through it. Life seemed to get a little crazy at times, but it was through these times that students learned and grew the most, building the memories that would last for a lifetime.

Several students join together for a quick bite to eat between classes. Students often enjoyed eating outside.

Taking advantage of the nice weather, Jeff Grove catches up on his reading.

The cafeteria is a popular place for students to relax, talk, and grab something to eat.

Students enjoy studying in various locations around campus.

Roommates Jennifer Jones and Kelly Redfield look forward to the memories they will make during their freshman year.

Incoming students are often told on their first day that Birmingham-Southern College is the "safest place in the world." Southern's campus police force ensured safety and provided service to the campus community. Security operated 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and provided immediate response to anyone requesting assistance. Many security officers built personal relationships with students and were willing to help out in any way possible, even if it is as simple as feeding your goldfish. Photos provided by Sireesha Allamneni

As students move on campus in August, the security staff faces some its busiest days.

The Service Learning department provided students with the opportunity to outreach into communities locally, nationally, and internationally so that they could understand the importance of moral and civic imagination through leadership and service. Some weekly service projects included Meals on Wheels, Firehouse Men's Shelter, First Presbyterian Women's Shelter, Habitat for Humanity, and Woodrow Wilson Elementary School.

Members of the Mozambique service-learning project take a short break from working to relax and chat with each other.

Seniors Jason Avery, Graham Burgess, and Erin Kendrick take a picture with the group they assisted on Outreach Day.

Entertainment Fest 2000 was a night of relaxing, socializing and dancing while listening to bands brought to campus by the Quest II staff. The weekend consisted of two action-packed nights featuring six bands under the big tent on the dorm quad. Members of Quest II worked hard to organize and oversee the entire event with the assistance of campus security. Many students invited their off-campus friends.

Trick or treat! students worked hard to make Halloween fun and eventful for the Birmingham area children. Students helped turn the dorm quad into a festival of games and entertainment. Residents of Margaret Daniel decorated their floors with pumpkins and ghosts whereas the residents of Cullen Daniel transformed the first floor into a haunted house. Students dressed up in a variety of costumes for the fun-filled night.

'Southern Comfort

With Spring comes a weekend of relaxation

Bands made their entrance onto the dorm quad as hundreds of students gathered under the big tent for what was considered the biggest weekend of the year - Southern Comfort. This year's Southern Comfort featured North Mississippi All Stars, Funky Meters, Robert Bradley's Blackwater Surprise, and The Martial Tucker Band. On Saturday afternoon, games and activities were placed on the dorm quad and a special barbeque lunch was served. Photos provided by Sireesha Allamneni and Brian Dranka.

Homecoming was a complete success with the efforts of the Homecoming Committee chaired by juniors Beth Dennis and Will Grey. The action-packed week included free "Bleacher Creature" t-shirts given away at basketball games, a talent show sponsored by the Black Student Union to raise money in support of the Earthquake Relief Fund in India, renting out Five Points Music Hall for BSC students, and several other festivities. The theme of Homecoming 2001, "Milestones to Remember: Celebrating 25 years of Dr. and Mrs. Berte's Leadership," was created to honor the numerous contributions Dr. and Mrs. Berte have made to Southern.'

The Norton Center

The Central Location on Campus

The "Arcade" on the second floor of Norton allows students to check their e-mail, work on assignments, and play games.

After selecting the items needed, students check out at one of the two cash registers. At the start of each semester, the lines were often long.

When feeling a little under the weather, students often visit the bookstore to grab some over-the-counter medication before heading off to class, to study, or to catch a nap.

The Post Office is conveniently located near the cafeteria for students to send mail and check their campus boxes.

The Commuter Lounge is located on the second floor for commuters to keep their belongings, study, relax, or watch TV.

The Norton Center, nearly three years old, was known as the central location on campus for students. Student Affairs, International Studies, Service-Learning, the Career Center, the Commuter Lounge, cafeteria, bookstore, post office, theatre, and much more were all located the building.

Some students use the Norton Center as a place to study before class.

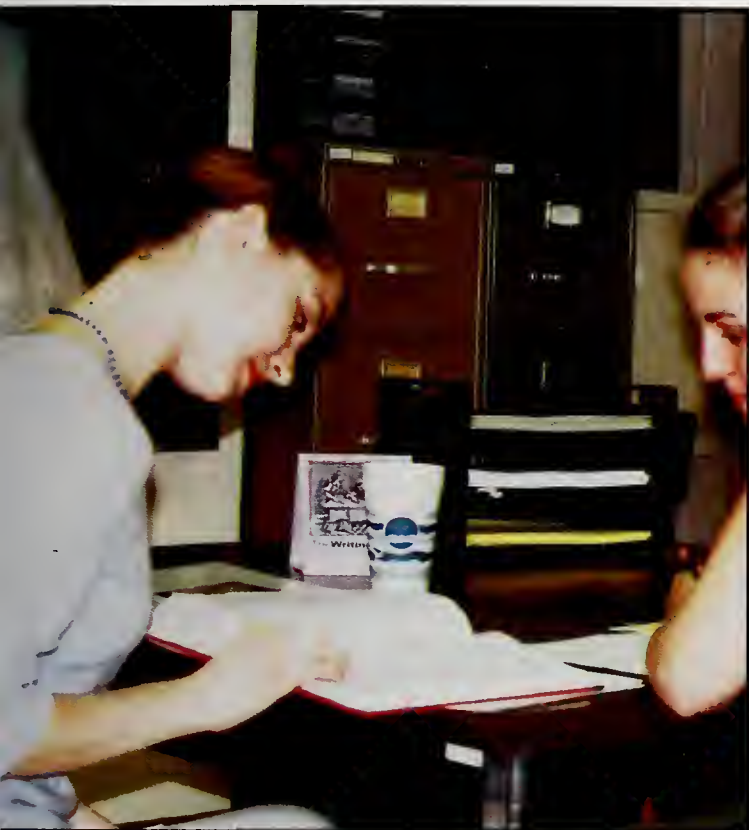

Where's the money? Money always seems to be something college students are looking for. While many students maintain internships and jobs off-campus, Birmingham-Southern also offers students the option to work on-campus. The work study program allows students to contribute their time by working campus facilities such as the Striplin gym or the Cellar at night, or by assisting various campus departments for compensation. The work study program is a great way for students to become more involved on campus while making some extra cash.

Senior Amanda Bowen answers phone calls and assists students by working the front desk in Student Affairs.

Students Kate McGann and Kristin Anderson enjoy serving cake, coffee, sandwiches, and other snacks to students in the cellar at night.

Some students assist security by answering the numerous phone calls received daily.

Interim was over, the weather was cold and rainy, Spring classes had been in session for nearly two months, and you were starting to lose motivation to study for class (that was if you had any motivation in the first place). There was only one hope--a break, Spring Break. It was a time to relax, put aside all work for just one week, maybe work on your tan, and breathe some fresh air before enduring the rest of the semester.

Senior Tyrenda Williams enjoys a journey across the world with the Adult Studies program to visit the beautiful city of Rome, Italy.

Some of the sisters of Zeta Tau Alpha spend their Spring Break at the beach like many other students.

The Food Court

A place for students to relax, chat, hang-out, study, and of course, eat

In addition to the cafeteria, The Cellar is open every night, featuring steaming coffee, a variety of delicious cakes, cool music, and a cozy atmosphere.

The Grill, known for its "Breakfast at Night," became increasingly popular with the introduction of the Philly Cheese Steak this year.

Students can enjoy pasta at the Italian bar which is open during lunch throughout the week.

The Food Court tried its best to serve students. Everyday the Food Court was open from early morning until midnight providing various food selections such as pasta dishes, a salad bar, sandwiches, smoothies, pretzels, desserts, snack items, and much more. Cafeteria workers accomodate students with things such as a "Napkin Board" where students could express any suggestions or possible requests they had.

Junior Natalie Hummel and Sophomore David Hulett relax and talk in the cafeteria after class.

Posing for the Picture PEOPLE

Whether beginning college life and learning the ropes as a freshman, getting settled in as a sophomore, finding a niche as a junior, or preparing for the future as a senior, each student had fun in addition to working hard throughout the year. Expressions of uncertainty, comfort, seriousness, and happiness were captured on the faces of incoming and returning students as they stopped to “pose for the picture” at Fall Registration and other times throughout the year. Regardless of their position on campus, all students experienced a year of their lives filled with memories made by taking advantage of the wonderful opportunities the college offered. Looking back years from now, the many memories formed will flood forward with the image of this simple snapshot. As Shakespeare once wrote, “When to the sessions of sweet silent thought I summon up remembrance of things past, I sigh the lack of many a thing I sought. And old woes new wail my dear time’s waste.”

Baseball team members join together to serve the community at Halloween on the Hilltop as they hang out with neighborhood children.

As she helps freshmen move into the dorms, Triangle Club member Sheela Patel smiles for the camera. Many upperclassmen assisted with move-in and Orientation, welcoming new faces to campus.

Several members of Students Offering Support gather in the SGA meeting room for breakfast prior to their morning training sessions. Through casual conversation and icebreakers, members became better acquainted with one another.

to eat in the Court.

Students Being Themselves

When not studying, students find plenty to keep them busy whether serving the community or supporting an organization.

Sporting a range of costumes, students cater to neighborhood children by sponsoring booths for an evening of Halloween fun. Throughout the year, students joined together to serve the community in a variety of ways whether through Halloween on the Hilltop, Outreach Day, Service-Learning Interims, Alternative Spring Break, or in one of many other ways.

Rowdy, the school mascot, brings a little spirit to home sporting events. Throughout the year, Mary Jacob McKinley and Tim King shared the duties of bringing Rowdy to life.

Intramural sports allow students to take a break from their studies, get some exercise, support their favorite group, and most of all, have fun. Sports ranging from football to water polo provided a variety of activities.

Before beginning the day's activities, members of Students Offering Support chat while eating some breakfast. Members of SOS arrived on campus early for a week of training and to help with Orientation activities.

Forming friendships GREEKS

An important time in Greek life began with the intense period of Rush that started off the school year. After planning throughout the summer, sororities and fraternities were ready to find new pledges to join their groups. Once being selected as a pledge, freshmen began forming friendships that would follow them beyond their college years. As a member of a sorority or a fraternity, a student found opportunities for service and fun. In addition, the Greek system encouraged students to focus on academics. Throughout the year many groups benefited from the philanthropic endeavors of the Greek groups as they raised money and volunteered their time to numerous community organizations. Greeks also led active social lives by hosting a range of parties including formals and mixers. Through the many activities that fraternity brothers and sorority sisters participated in as a group, friendships were created and strengthened.

Following an intramural football game, the sisters of Kappa Delta celebrate being the champions.

"Being in a sorority not only allowed one to form close-knit relationships with those in the sorority but also with some great girls outside of the sorority."
--Mollie Rice

"As a sorority sister, I was provided with an immediate family outside of my home."
--Mary Catherine Burnett

"No matter what organizations you were involved in whether it be sports, clubs, sororities, or fraternities, you were not only seen as part of the group but were also seen as the individual you are."
--Meredith Humber and Paige Janney

Following Rush, sorority members are excited to welcome their new pledges and relieved that the week is over.

RUSH

Finding a Match

Rush was an intense week that allowed sorority members and prospective members to become acquainted. The week started with an Open House for parents and students on Move-In Day. On the following Tuesday, Rush actually began with a convocation followed by the first night of several informal parties. The following types of parties were held: IceBreaker Parties, Philanthropy Parties, Skit Parties, and Preferential Evening Parties. Throughout the week, Rho Chis were available to answer any questions that pledges might have. At the end of Rush, through a process of mutual selection and preferences, many rushees were invited to join a sorority.

New Members Chosen

After their busy and sometimes frantic week of Rush, Saturday, September 2, 2000, marked the beginning of an exciting time for some female members of the BSC community. Both the sorority members and the rushees waited impatiently for the time when the names of each new sorority member would be revealed. At two o'clock that afternoon each rushee received her bid in Simpson and ran up the hill toward the sorority amphitheater to join her new sisters. She was met by an array of sorority girls with brightly colored balloons, T-shirts, and signs. The cheers could be heard across campus. The people on the hillside marveled at the chaotic celebration below.

"Alpha Kappa Alpha is the oldest black sorority. In the past year, the group has been active in Habitat for Humanity. Additionally, members have baked cookies for Children's Hospital, prepared and delivered baskets to Bread and Roses, held financial planning seminars, and organized a fundraiser for the UNCF. AKA has also worked with the graduate chapter through community service activities and leadership development seminars. The sisters work to uphold high standards of honor, sisterhood, service to mankind, and scholarship."

MIXERS

Greeks Join Together for Fun

Among the many activities of fraternities and sororities were mixers. Mixers allowed the different Greek organizations to come together and have a good time. Each mixer followed a theme. When attending mixers, students conformed to the theme of the evening by wearing attire to fit the theme even if it was little wacky. For example, students donned cowboy hats, boots, and bandanas for the Cowboy and Indian Mixer. In the fall, mixers were held each Thursday evening. Regardless of the theme or the activities at the mixers, participants enjoyed a fun evening.

Alpha Tau Omega

Alpha Tau Omega is one of the oldest fraternities on campus. Throughout the year, members dedicated much of their time to philanthropic activities such as tutoring underprivileged children and helping out at homeless shelters. The members of Alpha Tau Omega actively participated in intramural activities as well as campus organizations.

Additionally, the brothers enjoyed having fun. During the fall mixers were hosted as well as the annual event Viking which has spread to other chapters across the nation. Members of Alpha Tau Omega epitomized diversity, loyalty, and friendship. The fraternity illustrated that uniqueness and differences can lead to success.

At their Catholic School and Dirty Old Men party, members of Alpha Tau Omega enjoy a crazy evening. Photos provided by members of Alpha Tau Omega.

Kappa Alpha

On January 17, 1882, the Phi Chapter of Kappa Alpha was established on campus. Technically, Kappa Alpha is an Order which has been and continues to be dedicated to Christian beliefs and the ideals of chivalry. Despite the diversity of the group, the brothers of Kappa Alpha comprise a close-knit group that works to uphold the ideals of the chapter. Members of the group are involved in numerous honoraries, organizations, and athletic teams on campus. The chapter has won the Ammen Awards for Chapter Excellence annually for over ten years. The award recognizes the top ten percent of Kappa Alpha chapters nationally. The strong belief that the chapter has in brotherhood has led to its success.

ΣΑΕ Sigma Alpha Epsilon

At the University of Alabama, Sigma Alpha Epsilon was founded on March 9, 1856 with a basis of intellectual and Christian ideals. Established in 1878, the Birmingham-Southern chapter still embodies the goodwill, justice, and honor promoted by the motto "The True Gentlemen." The chapter has won many honors and awards for scholastic and academic endeavors. The community service of the group has benefitted groups such as Muscular Dystrophy, Multiple Sclerosis, Cystic Fibrosis, and the Children's Hospital of Alabama. Many members of the chapter are also actively involved in campus honoraries recognizing both academic success and leadership.

Sigma Chi

In the Greek world, Sigma Chi is one of the oldest and largest fraternities. The diverse group of men is unified by their common pursuit of friendship, justice, and learning. Brothers are committed to academics and athletics as well as community service. The fraternity has helped organizations such as Children's Hospital, Fire House Men's Shelter, and Tornado Disaster Relief. Through the philanthropic event of Derby Days, brothers are able to help raise money for the Alabama Children's Miracle Network. In addition to achievement and involvement on campus, Sigma Chi supports an active social program.

Σ Ν Sigma Nu

Built on the ideals of love, truth, and honor, Sigma Nu has built a strong brotherhood. Academically, the chapter maintains a GPA that is often higher than the all-school, all-men, and all-Greek averages as is evidenced by the many honors that members hold. Additionally, the chapter is involved in numerous campus activities which foster the leadership skills of its members. As other Greek organizations, Sigma Nu actively participates in community service. Brothers are involved in campus sponsored events and also sponsor a philanthropy event known as Paladia. The chapter has also begun participating in the Big Brothers Big Sisters program in Birmingham.

Theta Chi

Theta Chi is one of the most diverse and dynamic groups on campus. Members set high standards for themselves and refuse to compromise them. Brothers are actively involved in numerous campus honoaries and a variety of organizations. The group consistently maintains a GPA that exceeds the all-men and all-fraternity averages. Many Theta Chi's have also received national honors for their achievements. Brothers also enjoy participating in intramural activities as well as sponsoring numerous parties. The brotherhood means living, learning, working, and socializing with a group of true friends.

PHILANTHROPY

Helping Hands

In addition to many social activities, each Greek organization was involved in numerous community service activities throughout the year. Each chapter supported one or more philanthropy projects. Often, these projects involved setting up fundraisers to support the different organizations. The Girl Scouts of America, the Arrowmont

School of Arts and Crafts, Arthritis Research, the Firehouse Men's Shelter, and many more were supported by the different Greek organizations. Philanthropy events were held to support the projects. Additionally, many Greeks participated in community service on their own whether through Service Learning or individual efforts.

Striving for Success

ACADEMICS

Birmingham-Southern College has always been well-known for the academic successes of its students. Students are fortunate to have dedicated professors, wonderful facilities in which to learn, and a tradition of academic excellence to maintain. Students may choose a major specializing in a wide variety of areas supported by the different academic departments. Students are even given the opportunity to contract their own major in a particular area of interest if they wish. In addition to the opportunities offered on campus, the college provides numerous other options off campus. Students may choose to take classes at nearby institutions such as Samford University or the University of Alabama at Birmingham for credit. Students may even choose to study abroad for a semester in places such as Hungary, South Africa, and England. Regardless of a student's goal, the college provides an environment in which he or she can truly strive for success and receive a excellent education.

Around exam time, anticipation and anxiety are at their peaks for most students.

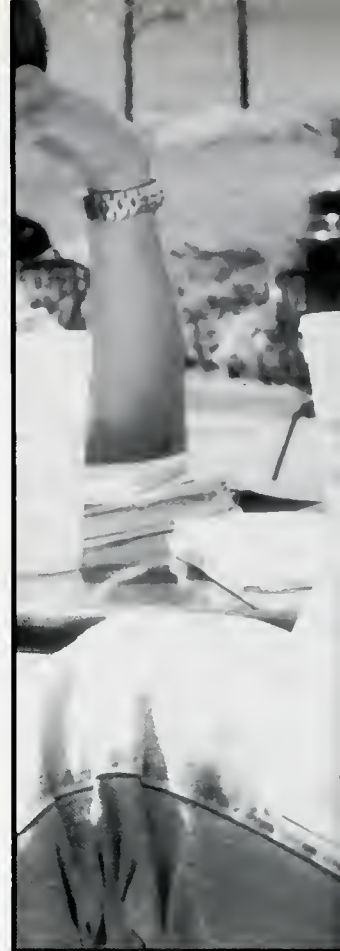

Finals: Stress and Studying

As a semester drew to a close, students found themselves frantically working to complete all their assignments and study for finals which counted for a large portion of the final grade in many classes. All around campus, students could be found preparing whether they were reading or working on the computer. After completing finals, students felt relief as the stress disappeared and they no longer had to study.

Working at the computer terminals in the library, students complete last minute research and papers.

Studying at the same table in the library allows students to help each other out when questions arise.

In library, Hill Carmichael finds a secluded and quiet spot to study without any distractions.

Rather than studying in the library, many students chose to work in their dorm rooms.

BSC students are fortunate to have the opportunity to spend the month of January focusing in on a particular area of interest to them. Students choose to spend their Interim breaks taking a class on campus or completing projects off campus such as internships or travels abroad to experience different cultures. Four Interims are required for graduation, one of which is a Senior Interim focusing on the major and/or career interests of the student.

Students participating in the sailing Interim take a break from their work to stretch out their sea legs.

Participating in a service learning Interim on campus, many students learn how to play Bridge, a classic card game. After several classes, they had the opportunity to utilize their skills by playing with elderly individuals in the community.

Adult Studies Program ends its 26-year stay at Birmingham-Southern College

Birmingham-Southern College began an Evening Program in 1975 under the leadership of Dr. Paul Bailey and Dr. Byron Chew. The first six-week miniterm began October 27, 1975 with 75 students and one business administration major. Other majors were added later in accounting, education, health care management, human resource management, and psychology/sociology. Students completed required Liberal Learning (LL) interdisciplinary courses to meet some general requirements.

The first Director of the Evening Program was Dr. Natalie Davis, followed by Dr. William Nicholas. Currently, Dr. Edward LaMonte is Dean of Adult Studies, and Judith Hand is Assistant Dean.

The College announced in 1999 that the Adult Studies Program would be phased out over a two-year period. After a twenty-five year history, the Adult Studies Program officially ends on August 31, 2001. There have been approximately 3800 adult students enrolled, and approximately 1400 graduates, including seventy plus graduating in 2001, who have contributed greatly to business and community life in Birmingham.

A Service of Recognition was held on May 24, 2001, to recognize the accomplishments of the alumni and students of the Adult Studies Program.

Setting the standard ORGANIZATIONS

Organizations played a vital role in the campus community. There were clubs to fit the needs of each individual. Service organizations allowed students to join together to reach out to the community, and the religious groups allowed students to grow spiritually. Other groups gave students hands on opportunities in producing publications, while yet others allowed to students to promote and serve the college. Special interest groups brought students with similar interests together. Additionally, several honorary organizations like Phi Beta Kappa and Omicron Delta Kappa existed to recognize excellence in academics, service, and other areas. Each organization had its own functions whether helping the new freshmen move in at the start of the year or organizing and promoting Entertainment Fest and Southern Comfort. Regardless of the type of organization, each strived to enrich and better the campus community, setting the standard for future students.

Under the hot African sun, students drink coconuts for a refreshing treat.

While in Mozambique, students experienced several delicacies from the area.

At Halloween on the Hilltop, Ashley Grier helps a child play a game. Numerous organizations and groups provided innovative booths for the event.

ALLIES

Allies provided programs and services to address the special needs of gay and lesbian students on campus. The group also tried to heighten the awareness and understanding of issues pertinent to its members and to the general college campus. Membership was open to all students.

ALPHA PHI OMEGA

Alpha Phi Omega encouraged friendship, leadership, and service through fellowship and service projects on campus and in the community. Alpha Phi Omega is traditionally associated with the Scouting Program.

ART STUDENT LEAGUE

The Art Student League was comprised of students who were seeking to improve the conditions of the art facilities on campus as well as provide opportunities for students interested in art.

TASTING THE WORLD

The International Student Association hosts an International Food Festival providing individuals with a chance to sample cuisine from around the world.

Representing her home country, Ukraine, and the home of her grandparents, Russia, Julia Kedrova serves some of the treats she prepared. Photos taken from the ISA web page.

In addition to international students, many locals are also involved with ISA. Ann Patton Nelson provides a taste of Alabama with brownies, chocolate chip cookies, and oatmeal raisin cookies.

Esha Gatta and Sakeena Ahmed represent the flavors of India at their table. In addition to serving food, students also created boards depicting some aspects of their native countries.

The Publications Board monitored and advised the student publications: The Hilltop News, Quad, Southern Accent, Southern Academic Review, and The Compass. Members of the board consisted of three students, the SGA President and Treasurer, and the editors of the publications.

PARTY PLANNING

The Quest II staff coordinates and prepares for Entertainment Fest and Southern Comfort, providing bands and other entertainment for students.

Students and their guests fill the white tent placed on the dorm quad in order to listen and to dance to the music of each of the bands scheduled for the evening.

Quest II arranged for the Parliament Funkadelic to perform at Entertainment Fest. The group's guitarist livened up the crowd with a solo.

Staff members hand out arm bands to students entering the tent to hear the bands lined up for Southern Comfort.

QUAD

Editor-in-Chief: Lauren Terry
Prose Editor: Valerie Whitfield
Poetry Editor: Emily Self
Art Editor: Chris Screws
 McCharen Pratt

The Quad staff published a literary magazine composed of student works in creative writing and art. The Quad provided an outlet for students to gain experience in the fields of editing, layout, and distribution. It also sought to heighten student awareness of the arts on campus.

QUEST II

Chairmen

JUMPING INTO ACTION

With the variety of organizations and activities on campus, each student is able to find his or her niche and jump into the action

Through the activities planned in the residence halls, students become close. The residents of the first floor of Margaret Daniel will cherish their friendships forever.

Shaye Rabold, Neha Shah, and Shannon Mancin enjoy sharing in the holiday festivities at the annual SGA Christmas party.

The girls of Margaret Daniel turn their floor into a trick-or-treater's paradise by decorating the halls and handing out candy to children.

Stepping in the Spotlight

FINE ARTS

Did you ever notice that there were some students on this campus you just never saw, or if you did, they always seemed to be heading in the same direction? If one were to look for a student enrolled in one of the Fine and Performing Arts programs, he could usually find him in the same place working feverishly. The art students usually hid out in the studios either painting a masterpiece or creating a new sculpture to place on campus. The dancers, always with their hair in a bun, were probably putting on their pointe shoes to rehearse for the Spring performance. Then there were the music majors, who usually sang down the halls as they headed to those little rooms to practice for their weekly lessons. And of course, the theatre students were always rehearsing for their next show in the theater. Regardless of the discipline, these students were constantly working hard in hopes of fulfilling their professional ambitions and dreams of doing what they love best.

Before beginning practice or lessons in Hill, dancers stretch to avoid injuries.

SWEENEY TODD

The Demon Barber of Fleet Street - A Musical Thriller

Heavy? Yes. Extraordinarily entertaining? Absolutely. From the well-drawn characters, to the incredibly demanding score, to the pure sense of the theatrical, 'Southern students did an outstanding job performing what was said to be the "perfect musical."

Lead performers Lauren Cantrell and James Seay bring many laughs and smiles while singing their comical duet together.

The Ensemble adds to the overall effectiveness of the musical by executing a wide variety of emotions throughout the performance.

In Sweeney Todd, Mrs. Lovett comforts Tobias Ragg, acted by Kevin Faraci.

Nat Gunter remarkably performs the role of Sweeney Todd, the character of a good guy gone bad.

A generous helping of precocious personalities

Fallen Angels is like a decadent dessert. It is a colorful glimpse into a far-away, fantasy-like place. And, like all good theater, it goes to an imperfect place--a feast of foibles and eccentricities. And yes, the characters don't always tell the truth and possess strong passions and inclinations that journey to the extreme. Many students worked hard in preparing and performing the play.

GODSPELL

Students could not stop raving about the musical Godspell which was performed January 25-30. The director of Godspell, Michael Flowers, notes that this production "wants us to learn that as individuals we are nothing without a community with which to share our individuality, and that community is more whole, more complete when it seeks to know and love the Great Mystery which gave us all life, and Who sustains us through the good and the bad."

During interim 2001, members of the cast spend numerous hours in order to execute Godspell's powerful message.

Tale of Two Cities is a rich pool of contrasts - heroes and villains, despair and victory, vulnerability and strength. It is a story that prompts us to ask if we have a role in crafting our fate. What choices bolster, bend, or break our destinies? Dickens challenges us to examine the qualities of our existence, the substance of our relationships, and, ultimately, our journey of fortune.

MISS BSC 2001

Jennifer Bashaw crowned Miss BSC 2001.

On Saturday, October 28, 2000, Junior Psychology major Jennifer Bashaw from Empire, Alabama received the title of Miss Birmingham-Southern 2001. The event was hosted by Teresa Cheatham Stricklin, Miss Alabama 1978, and featured guest appearances of Tyrenda Williams, Miss Birmingham-Southern 2000, and her younger brother, Tyrone Williams.

Thirteen women competed for the title of Miss Birmingham-Southern. The evening consisted of interview, swimsuit, talent and evening gown competitions.

Freshman Laura Stonecipher, an Accounting/Business major from Sheffield, Alabama, received a scholarship award for winning the swimsuit competition. In addition to receiving the title, Jennifer Bashaw was awarded a talent scholarship for her vocal performance of "Orange Colored Sky".

Jennifer Bashaw's platform was entitled "L.O.V.E. Our Veterans," standing for Learn, Organize, Volunteer, and Educate. L.O.V.E. is an outreach program designed to educate elementary students about veterans' affairs and needs.

Bashaw looks forward to competing for the title of Miss Alabama during the summer of 2001.

CHOIR TOUR

Vying for Victory

SPORTS

Beginning their first year of NCAA competition, athletic teams faced both wins and losses. Overall, the first year in NCAA competition was an amazing year that took many by surprise. As part of the transition, the college also began introducing new sports. The women's basketball team debuted in the fall with the Lady Panthers with an incredible start, finishing their inaugural season with a 19-9 overall record. Many of the other teams on campus also found success throughout the year as the campus community supported the teams. The athletes crammed numerous hours of practice into their schedules in order to perform the best that they could. With the addition of women's softball, an Air Rifle team, and both men's and women's golf teams next year, the athletic teams will definitely move towards their future in the NCAA where student athletes will continue to vye for victory.

Women's Soccer Team Makes History

The women's soccer team ended their triumphant season by competing in the NAIA National Tournament for the first time. The team won the TranSouth Championship as well as the Region XI Championship. The overall record of 18-4-1 was a program record for single wins in a season. Several other single season records were also broken such as most goals scored (115), fewest goals allowed (20), most shut-outs (10), most consecutive games not shutout (22), and the most assists (107). Additionally, both Eryun Oddsdottir and Erin Mahoney scored 20 goals. Oddsdottir also broke the record for assists (15) and points scored (55). In its sixth season, the team proved that the best is yet to come.

Men's Soccer Wins TranSouth

Conference Championship

The 2000 Men's Soccer season ended in the semi-finals of the Region XI Tournament with the team posting a final record of 12-10. For the fifth consecutive year the team won the TranSouth Athletic Conference Tournament Championship. Three members of the BSC Men's Soccer team were named All-Americans. Kevin Kosek made the first team, while Nico Bernhardt was second team, and Christian Seeberger was third team. Ryan Neil and Kosek were selected as NAIA All-American Scholar-Athletes with Neil earning the honor for the second year in a row.

Men's Basketball has successful season while playing some NCAA teams

The 2000-01 Men's Basketball team finished their season with an impressive 17-9 overall record. Led by head coach Duane Reboul and assistant coaches Mitch Cole, Scott Stapler, and Marck McCaleb, the Panthers went 9-8 against Division I opponents and will add even more Division I opponents to next season's schedule. Senior Joe Ransom will leave BSC as the 15th highest scorer in BSC history after only two seasons. Although the team did not make it into the postseason, the team is looking forward to their sophomore season in the NCAA.

Southern Stars performed at Birmingham Southern College basketball games. Whether cheering on the sidelines, performing a halftime show, or throwing souvenirs to the crowd, the Southern Stars continued to demonstrate the same spirit and enthusiasm that has been and continues to be the trademark of the group. They once again participated in the Universal Dance Association Camp at the University of Alabama. The dance team was an important part of BSC spirit.

The Southern Stars prepare to begin their dance routine for those attending a basketball game.

Cheerleaders

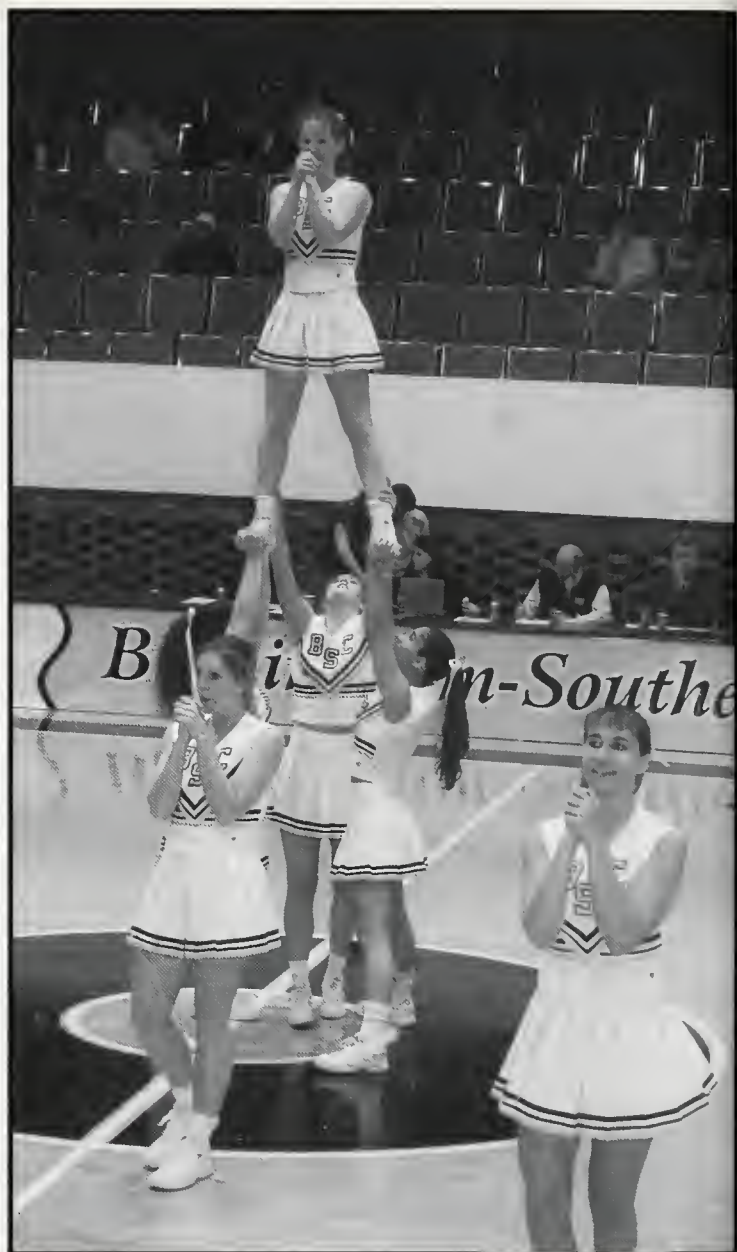

Stunts and cheers bring spirit to each of the basketball games.

The BSC Cheerleaders continued their strive towards excellence with the 2000-01 season. Along with the dance team, the cheerleaders performed at the men's and women's basketball games. For the first time the cheerleaders hosted a summer camp with CTC. At the camp the squad learned new cheers and stunts which they used in their halftime performances. As always, the BSC Cheerleaders, along with Rowdy, were counted on to keep the BSC spirit alive at the basketball games.

Even when injured, the cheerleaders show their spirit on the sidelines.

Focusing on the future

CLOSING

As the spring semester drew to a close, students found themselves frantically trying to complete last minute papers and projects while also preparing for exams. Seniors looked forward to beginning a new stage in their lives whether at graduate school, a new job, or some other endeavor. The campus community recognized students for their accomplishments throughout the year, and students recognized Dr. Berte for his years of service on the Hilltop. Amidst the chaotic drive to the end of the semester, honor societies inducted their new members, and many organizations elected new officers for the upcoming year. Once finals were finally completed, students living on campus faced the chore of packing up all of their belongings and preparing to depart for a few months. Seniors packed up for the last time and waited for the graduation festivities to begin. Whether a senior, junior, sophomore, or freshman, the end of the semester led students to begin focusing on the future.

On the first floor of Harbert, students mingle while exploring a variety of displays on Honors Day.

As the newly elected SGA president, Kim Polkowski waits to congratulate Dr. Berte for his many contributions to the college on Award's Day.

The Juried Student Art Show held in the Durbin Gallery allows those attending to enjoy the creations of art students.

Evan Garner concentrates as he delivers a presentation in Harbert to an audience of faculty, students, parents, and others on Honors Day.

As part of the afternoon activities, Ansley Collins delivers a presentation to students, faculty, and parents in Harbert.

At the start of the convocation, graduating seniors join the faculty in a procession into Munger.

Those watching from the balcony stand as the seniors proceed into the auditorium led by the faculty.

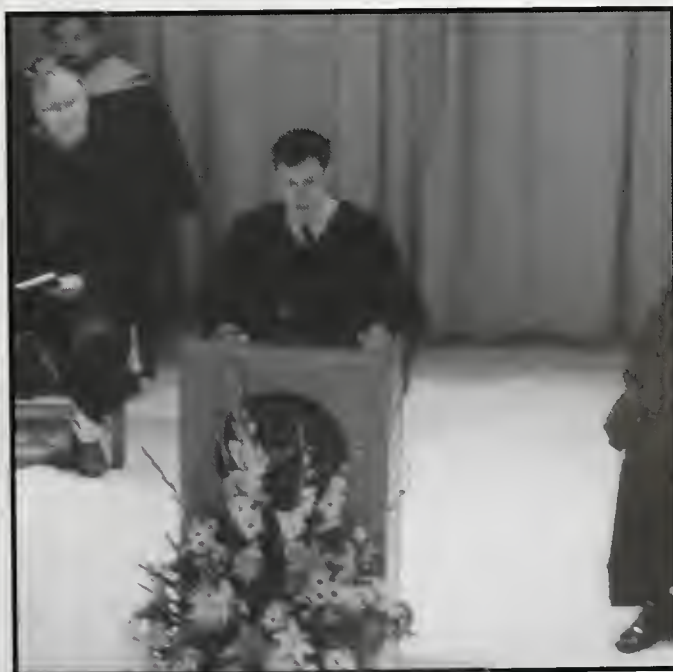

Honors Day

Seniors, students, and faculty recognized for academic success

On Tuesday, April 24, classes were cancelled to allow the campus community to come together and recognize some of the many academic success and endeavors on campus. Divisional awards were presented by each of the academic divisions, followed by a convocation in Munger. The afternoon was filled with student presentations.

Between presentation sessions, students and others mingle on the first floor of Harbert before heading upstairs for more presentations.

Outgoing SGA president Mitch Robinson salutes the seniors with an energetic speech reflecting on the past four years seniors spent on campus. Photos by Brian Dranka and Kelley Hewitt.

After learning of the scholarship being created in his honor and receiving a standing ovation, Dr. Berte addresses those in attendance.

Assistant Athletic Director Mike Robinson presents Jerry Cotney with the Sportsman of the Year Award. Several individuals were recognized by the Sports Department for a variety of things.

As the newly elected SGA President, Kim Polkowski congratulates Dr. Berte after announcing that SGA would be establishing a scholarship in recognition of his twenty-five years of service.

Awards Day

are honored*

On Tuesday, May 1, time was set aside to recognize the many individuals who contributed to the college through their membership in organizations, participation in campus activities, and service to the community. Additionally, the Student Juried Art Show opened its doors, showcasing the outstanding artwork of students.

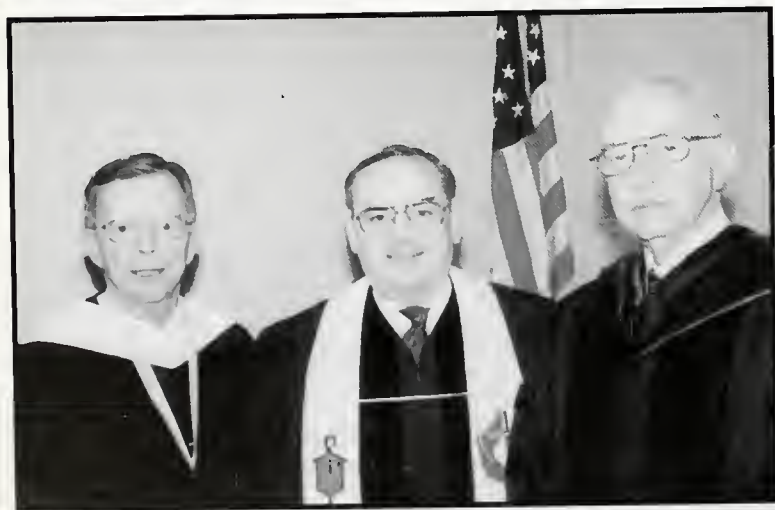

Students attending the Juried Art Show appreciate the paintings, sculptures, photographs, and other artwork created by their peers.

By allowing Rachel Estes to join her at the Capping Ceremony, Melanie Glover recognizes the difference that service learning has made in her life.

At Commencement, the faculty prepares to lead the graduates into Boutwell Auditorium for the ceremony. Commencement was held on Saturday, May 26, at 3:30.

At the First United Methodist Church downtown, Dr. Berte and Dr. Penfield join the pastor who delivered the Baccalaureate service.

Graduation Activities

Seniors reflect on the past four years as they prepare to leave BSC

As finals rolled around, many seniors quickly realized that the end of their years of study at BSC was rapidly approaching. A series of events were held for seniors to recognize their success and congratulate them for receiving degrees in a range of fields. On Friday, May 25, a Capping Ceremony was held in Norton (cont. on page 209)

The talented choir stands on stage waiting their turn to sing as the graduates march into Boutwell.

At the Capping Ceremony, Dr. Barry Spieler places Jennifer Clem's cap. As a math major, Jennifer had numerous classes with Dr. Spieler and completed a research project under him. Photos provided by Bill Wagnon.

Proud grandparents happily join their grandchildren on the stage for the Capping Ceremony.

Following four years on the Hilltop, seniors line up as they prepare to march into Boutwell for the ceremony.

The stairs in the Atrium of Norton become packed as seniors, family, and friends head to the Great Hall for the Capping Ceremony.

town. The festivities concluded that afternoon with Commencement at Boutwell Auditorium followed by a reception at the Birmingham Museum of Art.

Colophon

The 2000-2001 Southern Accent was composed using PageMaker 6.5 with the addition of Josten's Yeartech 2001 Software. The main font used throughout the book is Palatino though other fonts appear at times. The book was printed by Jostens in Clarksville, Tennessee. Keith Lail served as our representative. The theme was decided upon by the staff.

Editor's Notes

I would like to take the opportunity to thank all those who have helped make this book possible. First, I would like to thank the staff for working diligently on their pages and for putting up with my many e-mails throughout the year. It was amazing how busy each of us managed to be and how difficult it was to stay in touch at times. I would also like to extend special thanks to all those who contributed photos for use in the book. Particularly, I would like to thank Bill Wagnon and the Communications Office for graciously taking photos and allowing us to use them. Without their photos, I am not sure that this book would have been complete. I would also like to thank the sororities and fraternities for allowing us to borrow their photos in order to complete the Greek pages. Additionally, it would be unjust if I failed to thank Carolyn Lewis for all her support, help, and encouragement throughout the year. In such a short paragraph, I find it impossible to thank everyone who has helped throughout the year; thus, I am sorry if I have not mentioned someone by name. Without support from throughout the campus community, this book would never happen. I would also like to apologize for any names that are spelled incorrectly. We have tried our best; however, mistakes can happen. I hope that each of you enjoy the book and will remember your 2000-2001 year at BSC forever. --Molly Gibson
